

DOCTORS WANTED!

Help test assessment tools

There have been assessment procedures for investigating poorly performing doctors since 1997. The Academic Centre for Medical Education at UCL is working with the GMC to review Fitness to Practise procedures and update the assessments to ensure each assessment is fair to the doctor being assessed.

To do this, we are holding validation events for new assessment material and are looking for interested and fully registered doctors to participate. The day will involve taking a written test and a 12 station OSCE and will last from 10:00am – 4:30pm

To be eligible, you must be FY2 to Consultant level, and have worked in the specialty for at least four months within the last year. Volunteers can only take this test once for each specialty.

All volunteers will receive feedback about their own performance. The day provides valuable insight into how the GMC assesses referred doctors and is also excellent examination practice for those about to do postgraduate exams.
